Master class. Media's changing role

9.30 – 11.00 SESSION II. How media and media regulation have changed in recent years

Moderator:

Douglas Griffin, Albany Associates

Introduction to the master class. Overview.

Speakers:

Jem Thomas, Albany Associates – how media has changed internationally

Assomiddin Attoev, Internet Service Providers Association, Tajikistan -- regional changes

Douglas Griffin, Albany Associates – communications regulation in a changing world

An interactive, facilitated discussion including three brief presentations on how media and the regulation of media has changed in recent years and how it looks today, both internationally and in the region. Specifically, speakers will introduce and discuss the following topics:

- Traditional mass media, including terrestrial and satellite broadcasting and print media
- Advancements in the Internet and social media
- How these advancements have changed the way people receive and exchange information internationally
- How these changes have taken place on a regional level
- Regulation of traditional mass media
- The legacy of regulation of traditional mass media and its impact on ways various governments have attempted to regulate the Internet and social media
- Questions of jurisdiction and challenges of enforcement
- Self-regulatory mechanisms of offline and online content
- Information and media literacy as a way of protecting society

11.00 – 11.15 Coffee break

11.15 – 13.00 SESSION III. Freedom of expression online. Scenarios and group work

Facilitators:

Douglas Griffin and Jem Thomas, Albany Associates

Participants will be divided into groups to discuss two or more scenarios where the regulation of communications is at issue, requiring each group to balance the need for freedom of speech with other rights and decide how the issue would be decided in their home countries and how policy could be shaped to address the issue best in the future. Such scenarios will focus on online speech, and may include the following:

- Speech on twitter considered by law enforcement to be incitement to violence
- Comments on a website deemed to be defamatory by the authorities
- A blog post considered to be hate speech

13.00 – 14.00 Lunch

14.00 – 15.45 SESSION IV. Drafting conference recommendations. Group work.

Conference participants are divided into two groups to contemplate media freedom issues and take stock of the issues raised during previous conferences by:

- examining previously adopted declarations,
- identifying the major media development issues in their countries and
- drafting recommendations in the form of an action plan.

Facilitators:

Douglas Griffin and Jem Thomas, Albany Associates

15.45 – 16.00 Coffee break

16.00 – 17.00 CLOSING SESSION.

Rapporteurs inform the audience on the group work discussions.

Moderator:
