In 2013 Liechtenstein financially contributed to the publication of the OSCE „Guidebook on Preventing Terrorism and Countering Violent Extremism and Radicalization that Lead to Terrorism: a Community Policing Approach“. Council of Europe

Liechtenstein is a member of the Committee of Experts on the Evaluation of Anti-Money Laundering Measures and the Financing of Terrorism (Moneyval) and of the Committee of Experts on Terrorism (CODEXTER). It appreciates the contribution of the Council of Europe in the area of preventing and suppressing terrorism on the basis of its commitment to democracy, human rights and the rule of law and is fully committed to the ongoing work of the two Committees.

Egmont Group

Liechtenstein plays an active role in the Egmont Group, the international association of national financial intelligence units and supports the activities with expertise.

² Liechtenstein’s seventh national report to the CTC of May 2011 is available under www.newyork.liechtenstein.li.

Financial Action Task Force (FATF)

Liechtenstein fully co-operates with the FATF and implements the Forty FATF Recommendations on Money Laundering as well as the Nine Special Recommendations on Terrorist Financing.

Bilateral agreements

In the framework of strengthened regional cooperation, Liechtenstein has concluded a treaty with its neighbouring countries Switzerland and Austria which entered into force on 1 July 2001 (LGBl. 2002 No. 122). The objective of the treaty is to cooperate regarding mutual security interests, to further develop close cooperation among police and border police, and to counter transboundary threats and international crime effectively by means of a cooperative security system.

Based on the Customs Union Treaty, Liechtenstein and Switzerland concluded a bilateral Agreement on the Transboundary Movement of Firearms (LGBl. 2011 Nr. 571) in order to preserve the integrity of the Schengen Acquis. As a result, Liechtenstein respects the terms of Directive 2008/51/EC of the European Parliament and the Council of 21 May 2008 amending Council Directive 91/477/EEC on control of the acquisition and possession of weapons.

1.2 What national legislation has been adopted in your State to implement the above-mentioned agreements and arrangements?

In October 2003, the Liechtenstein Parliament adopted an Anti-Terrorism Package amending the Criminal Code (CC), the Code of Criminal Procedure (CCP) and the Due Diligence Act (DDA). In December 2008, the Liechtenstein Parliament passed legislation aimed at substantively implementing international standards in the fight against money laundering and combating the financing of terrorism. The legislative package includes in particular a comprehensive revision of the DDA, selected amendments to the CC and a new International Sanctions Act (ISA). The legislation entered into force in March 2009. Liechtenstein's legal texts are available on-line³.

Individual terrorist acts

According to the CC, certain criminal acts are terrorist acts if they are able to produce profound or enduring disturbances of public life or to profoundly affect the economy, and if they are executed intentionally with the aim to frighten the population, to coerce public bodies or an international organisation or to seriously shock or destroy the political, constitutional, economic or social structure of a state or an international organisation. Among these criminal acts are homicide, intentional bodily harm, offences against personal liberty (such as extortionate kidnapping, coercion and dangerous threat), criminal offences against the public order (such as arson, creating an explosion and poisoning)⁴. These criminal offences are also sanctioned in case of attempt⁵ or complicity⁶. Any person providing a safe haven to terrorists is therefore also responsible for the crime committed insofar as providing a safe haven contributes to the commission of the crime. Sanctions for terrorist acts can go up to one and a half times the maximum sentence for the criminal act as fixed by the CC⁷. The financial support of terrorist acts is a criminal offence sanctioned with up to five years of prison⁸.

⁵ Section 15 CC.

⁶ Section 12 CC.

Terrorist organisations

The CC defines a terrorist organisation as a union of more than two people established for a certain length of time with the objective of one or several of its members to commit one or several terrorist acts⁹. The participation in and the financial support of a terrorist organisation are sanctioned with up to 10 years of imprisonment while the leading of a terrorist organisation is sanctioned with up to 15 years of imprisonment¹⁰.

Jurisdiction

As a basic principle, all criminal acts committed on Liechtenstein territory are punishable according to Liechtenstein law. In addition to this rule, domestic legislation applies to certain crimes committed abroad, regardless of the law of the place of commission¹¹. With respect to terrorist acts and the leading of or participation in a terrorist organisation, criminal responsibility can be established if the crime itself is committed abroad, regardless of the laws of the place of commission, and if there is a domestic connecting factor as set out by law (e.g. if the perpetrator is a Liechtenstein citizen or resident or if the perpetrator is a foreign national staying in Liechtenstein who cannot be extradited). Similar provisions apply for the financing of terrorism.

Confiscation and forfeiture

Profits obtained from or for the commission of a criminal offence are to be confiscated by court under certain conditions¹². Furthermore, property at the disposal of a terrorist association or property that has been provided or collected as a means of financing terrorism is to be declared forfeited under certain conditions, even if the property derives from an offence for which Liechtenstein jurisdiction does not apply, if the offence is punishable under the law of the State where it was committed¹³. Generally, forfeiture can apply to all property and items located in Liechtenstein¹⁴.

1.3 What are the roles and missions of military, paramilitary and security forces and the police in preventing and combating terrorism in your State?

The Principality of Liechtenstein does not maintain any military forces. Please refer to the note of the Permanent Mission of Liechtenstein to the OSCE dated 26 November 1998 concerning the „NIL report on VD 94 Commitments“.

The national police force is the only armed authority in Liechtenstein and is competent for combating and prosecuting terrorist activities and groups. The criminal investigation division within the national police force is in charge of these tasks. The search for terrorists and terrorist groups as well as the enforcement of requests for mutual legal assistance is part of its mission. The head of the criminal investigation division coordinates the cooperation with foreign countries in prosecuting terrorist activities.

1.4 Provide any additional relevant information on national efforts to prevent and combat terrorism, e.g., those pertaining inter alia to:

— Financing of terrorism;

In addition to the provisions against the financing of terrorism, the CC criminalises money laundering¹⁵ in line with international standards and thoroughly implements the related international sanctions regimes.

Liechtenstein's Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU) has the lead in coordinating the fight against money laundering and terrorist financing. The FIU also implements the International Sanctions Act. It receives analyses and disseminates information for the detection of cases of money laundering, predicate offences for money laundering, organised crime or the financing of terrorism. The revision of the Due Diligence Act (DDA) and the new Due Diligence Ordinance (DDO), which entered into force in March 2009, implement the Third EU Money Laundering Directive of 26 October 2005 (3MLD), the directive of 1 August 2006 (PEP Directive) and Regulation (EC) No 1781/2006 on information on the payer accompanying transfers of funds. Several legislative amendments in preparation of the country assessment by the IMF and Moneyval entered in to force revising the Due Diligence Act, the Criminal Code, and the Code of Criminal Procedure. In 2012, the new international standard for combating money laundering and terrorist financing (FATF standard) entered into effect. Preparatory work in this regard – especially in view of the inclusion of serious tax offences as predicate offences – has already begun. The FIU also carries out these tasks in its function as chair of the working group on money laundering, terrorist financing, and proliferation.

The Financial Market Authority (FMA) is an independent supervisory body overseeing Liechtenstein's financial and insurance sector. All financial and relevant non-financial institutions must be licensed by the FMA on the basis of internationally accepted criteria. The FMA sanctions non-compliance with the DDA/DDO by supervised entities and can refer such violations to the Office of the Public Prosecutor and notify the FIU.

Non-profit sector charitable organisations that have received tax-exemption status must be registered with the Public Registry. In accordance with article 108 of the Law on Persons and Companies, all non-commercial organisations must have a Director who is subject to the DDA. According to the new Liechtenstein Foundation Law, which entered into force in April 2009, charitable foundations are subject to mandatory and ongoing supervision by a newly created Foundation Supervision Authority and by an audit office established as an organ of such foundations. The use of charitable organisations for the financing of terrorism is criminalised in Liechtenstein, and the activities of charitable organisations are subject to oversight.

¹⁵ Section 165 CC.

The International Sanctions Act, which entered into force in March 2009, brought the domestic legislation in line with the current realities of the prevailing international sanctions regimes (UN-sanctions and EU-sanctions or restrictive measures). The law improves the legal basis for co-operation with international organisations in the implementation of sanctions and for data protection, sets clear responsibilities for enforcement and increases the penalties for sanctions violations.

— Border controls;

Liechtenstein and Switzerland form a Customs Union since 1923. On the basis of this treaty, there are no controls at the internal border between Liechtenstein and Switzerland, while the external borders of both countries are being controlled by Swiss authorities. Due to Liechtenstein's accession to the Schengen System, Liechtenstein and Switzerland have been negotiating a new treaty regarding the legal mandate of the Swiss Border Guard on Liechtenstein territory beyond the past delegations on the basis of the 1923 Treaty on the Customs Union, in particular regarding the police powers of the Swiss Border Guard. This new treaty was signed on 3 December 2008 and is provisionally applied since 12 December 2008 as far as cooperation between the Liechtenstein Police and the Swiss Border Guard is concerned. Specifically, it allows the Liechtenstein Police to delegate to the Swiss Border Guards the authority to control cash couriers on Liechtenstein territory.

— Travel document security;

Liechtenstein passports and identity documents fulfil all requirements concerning protection against forgery, data security, and international verifiability. Police cooperation in this area is ensured through close cooperation with the corresponding Swiss bodies (especially with the Conference of Cantonal Police Commanders KKPKS). Furthermore, there are numerous regional working groups with the police authorities of the neighbouring countries Austria, Germany, and Switzerland (e.g., Lake Constance Police Association, Police Concordat of Eastern Switzerland, Conference of the Police Presidents of the European Lake Constance Region). In addition, there is close contact with the Swiss police authorities and the Swiss justice department on both a personal and data system level.

— Container and supply chain security;

On 23 March 1923 Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein concluded a Customs Union Treaty under which the national territories of Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein were brought together to form a common customs area. For this reason a great number of Swiss laws are applicable in Liechtenstein. The information provided by Switzerland concerning container and supply chain security is therefore relevant for Liechtenstein as well.

— Security of radioactive sources;

See above

— Use of the Internet and other information networks for terrorist purposes;

The Liechtenstein Police have a specially trained economic crime unit designed to combat all forms of financial crime, including terrorist financing, as well as a special IT Unit equipped to intercept internet communication.

— Legal co-operation including extradition;

Liechtenstein considers international co-operation in the fight against terrorism as crucial. Therefore, Liechtenstein co-operates with other states both in the area of extradition and mutual legal assistance and within the framework of international organisations committed to the fight against terrorism, such as the United Nations, the OSCE, FATF and the Council of Europe.

Furthermore Liechtenstein's FIU is an active member of the Egmont Group, the worldwide association of national financial intelligence units, which supports and promotes the mutual exchange of information at the international level. As part of cooperation within the Egmont Group, the FIU concluded several bilateral Memoranda of Understanding and cooperation agreements.

The procedures for mutual legal assistance in criminal matters and extradition are determined by the provisions of the Legal Assistance Act (LAA). The Ministry of Justice is the competent authority for the reception and transmission of requests for legal assistance or extradition. The Ministry of Justice also decides about the prima facie admissibility of such requests.

If admissible, requests for legal assistance or extradition are transmitted to the Court of Justice. Decisions about legal assistance by the Court of Justice are subject to appeal both by the public prosecutor and by the person that is affected by the legal assistance demanded. Legal assistance may include the transfer of documents, items or information, citation before a foreign court and the transfer of imprisoned persons for evidence¹⁶. With regard to extradition, the person to be extradited has the right to demand a trial before the Appeals Court¹⁷.

The LLA's provisions are subsidiary to the several bilateral and multilateral treaties that include provisions on legal assistance and extradition and to which Liechtenstein is a State Party.

In general, according to the LLA, any terrorist activities as criminalised by the Liechtenstein Criminal Code (CC) are subject to legal assistance and extradition. Liechtenstein citizens may refuse extradition unless, for example, co-operation with the International Criminal Court is concerned¹⁸. In the case where a person suspected of a terrorist activity is not extradited, the person can be prosecuted under domestic jurisdiction.

— Safe havens and shelter to terrorists and terrorist organizations.

Providing safe haven to terrorists and their supporters is specifically and fully criminalized in Liechtenstein, albeit without the use of the phrase "providing safe haven". Under the Liechtenstein Criminal Code, not only the principal perpetrator of a crime, but any person that

¹⁶ Sections 52 to 54a LAA.

¹⁷ Section 33 LAA.

¹⁸ As determined in the Law on the Co-operation with the International Criminal Court and Other International Courts.

“contributes” to the commission of a crime bears criminal responsibility (article 12 Criminal Code).¹⁹ With respect to terrorist offences, such criminal responsibility is also established in cases where the crime itself takes place in another country (article 64 paragraph 1 Criminal Code), irrespective of the laws of that country. Any person providing safe haven to terrorists would therefore be equally responsible for the crime committed insofar as providing safe haven contributes to the commission of the crime.

The small size of the country (160 km²; population 36,476) turns out to be an advantage with regard to refugee questions and therefore also with regard to relevant aspects of counter-terrorism: It is practically impossible to be present in the country without the knowledge of the authorities. An important point in ensuring that asylum seekers are not involved in terrorist activities is the precise determination of the person’s identity and previous place of residence. According to article 42 of the Refugee Law, a foreign person is not granted asylum if there are reasons for exclusion from refugee status. In particular, refugee status is not given if there are serious grounds to suspect that the person has committed a crime against peace, a war crime, or a crime against humanity according to international conventions. The legal status of refugee is also not given if the person committed a serious crime of common law outside of the host country before the person was accepted as a refugee, or if the person is responsible for acts against the purposes and principles of the United Nations. Article 52 of the Refugee Law provides that the Government shall revoke asylum or refugee status if a refugee has obtained asylum or refugee status through false testimony or through concealing essential facts, if reasons contained in article 1(c)(1)-(6) of the Convention relating to the Status of Refugees of 28 July 1951 apply, if refugees threaten the security of Liechtenstein, or if they constitute a public danger due to prior conviction for a crime. Article 14 of the Liechtenstein law on mutual legal assistance provides that extradition is permissible for criminal acts based on political motivations or goals, if the criminal character of the act outweighs the political character, taking into consideration all the circumstances of the individual case. In the case of asylum seekers without documentation, there is a general problem with regard to the clarification of these two main questions. In such cases, clarifications are undertaken on the basis of local knowledge of the authorities or speech analyses (in collaboration with Swiss authorities). In addition, systematic fingerprinting is undertaken and compared with Liechtenstein and Swiss police systems. If, after thorough hearings, doubts remain regarding the identity and place of origin, further information sources are used (international organizations, the International Committee of the Red Cross, etc.). If no application for asylum is submitted within 10 days of entry, the application will not be considered and immediate deportation may be ordered, as long as these measures are in conformity with international legal obligations, including the relevant provisions of the European Convention on Human Rights and the customary international legal principle of non-refoulement. These measures ensure that persons who have been present in the country for a longer period of time cannot prevent extradition by applying for asylum.

2. Stationing of armed forces on foreign territory

2.1 Provide information on stationing of your States armed forces on the territory of other participating States in accordance with freely negotiated agreements as well as in accordance with international law.

¹⁹ Article 12 reads: „Treatment of all participants as perpetrators. Not only the immediate perpetrator shall be deemed to commit the punishable act, but also every person who directs another person to perform the act or who otherwise contributes to its performance.”

The Principality of Liechtenstein does not maintain any military forces. Please refer to the note of the Permanent Mission of Liechtenstein to the OSCE dated 26 November 1998 concerning the „NIL report on VD 94 Commitments“.

3. Implementation of other international commitments related to the Code of Conduct

3.1 Provide information on how your State ensures that commitments in the field of arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building as an element of indivisible security are implemented in good faith.

Liechtenstein has always supported the international efforts in the fields of disarmament and non-proliferation and is convinced that the existing regime of multilateral treaties must constitute the basis for work in the area of non-proliferation. Full implementation, universal acceptance and, where necessary strengthening of the existing instruments, in particular in the field of verification and monitoring are indispensable elements to enhance international peace and security.

Liechtenstein is a State Party to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT), the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC) and the Convention on the Prohibition of Biological Weapons (BWC). In the field of conventional weapons, Liechtenstein is a State Party to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects (CCW) and supports its full implementation. Liechtenstein further supports the full implementation of the UN Programme of Action on Small Arms and Light Weapons. Liechtenstein has ratified the Convention on Cluster Munitions (CCM) on 8 February 2013, it entered into force for Liechtenstein on 1 September 2013.

3.2 Provide information on how your State pursues arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building measures with a view to enhancing security and stability in the OSCE area.

In addition to the explanation given under I. 3.1, within the context of the OSCE, Liechtenstein supports the work to update the confidence- and security- building measures and financially contributes to a number of OSCE extra budgetary projects.

Liechtenstein's engagement on Women, Peace and Security

© Concordis International

Women have to be actively involved in conflict prevention and in peace and recovery processes. Millions of women are directly or indirectly affected by violence and conflict. However, they are rarely given a voice in peace talks and remain largely excluded from recovery processes. As a result, the rights and needs of half the population are often neglected in peace agreements, which has proven to hamper efforts to build sustainable and lasting peace and ensure long-term security.

For many years Liechtenstein has been committed to furthering the implementation of the United Nations (UN) Security Council's agenda on Women, Peace and Security, with a focus on ensuring the equal participation of women in peace and mediation processes. Liechtenstein furthermore supports efforts to end sexual violence in armed conflict and to strengthen criminal accountability. It is a long-standing supporter of the International Criminal Court which is a key actor in the international fight against impunity for sexual and gender-based violence.

UN Security Council agenda on Women, Peace and Security

In 2000 the UN Security Council (UNSC) addressed for the first time the impact of armed conflict on women by adopting Resolution 1325. It recognizes the underestimated and unused potential of women in conflict prevention and peace processes and is the cornerstone of the Women, Peace and Security agenda. The agenda serves the purpose of furthering the implementation of Resolution 1325 and its follow-up resolutions.

UN Women

The United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women was founded in 2010. Ensuring the equal participation of women in all aspects of peace and security policy is one of its core principles. Liechtenstein is a member of the Executive Board of UN Women in 2014 and is dedicated to playing an active role in the work of this UN entity.

Political support

The implementation of the Women, Peace and Security agenda requires persistent political commitment. Liechtenstein, together with other States and Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs), works tirelessly to raise awareness about the need to bolster implementation efforts and to enhance understanding of the agenda's various aspects. To this end, Liechtenstein cooperates closely with two NGO partners organizing a successful lecture series and preparing and making available practical tools and information material:

The NGO Working Group on Women, Peace and Security is a coalition of NGOs, connecting local and national women's rights organizations in conflict areas with political decisionmakers at the UN Headquarters in New York.

PeaceWomen is dedicated to the promotion and monitoring of the Women, Peace and Security agenda. Together with Liechtenstein and Switzerland it has published a manual and a smartphone application providing information on the agenda and its implementation.

International humanitarian law

Conflicts today tend to increasingly involve non-state actors. The NGO Geneva Call, supported by Liechtenstein, seeks to engage those actors in dialogues in order to ensure that they adhere to international humanitarian law. The NGO encourages the signature of Deeds of Commitment to respect internationally agreed norms, thereby preventing acts of sexual violence and making sure that perpetrators of such crimes will be held accountable.

The intergovernmental facility Justice Rapid Response (JRR) trains experts from different backgrounds to investigate war crimes, crimes against humanity and severe human rights violations. Liechtenstein supports JRR's work in the area of sexual and gender-based violence.

Mediation and peacebuilding

Most current conflicts are fought by state as well as non-state actors. The UN and international organizations and entities have limited access to non-state groups and thus quickly reach their limits when trying to resolve these conflicts.

It is therefore important to develop alternative means of establishing and conducting dialogue for peace talks between state and non-state actors. Liechtenstein supports initiatives working to ensure the participation of women and the implementation of the Women, Peace and Security agenda in mediation and peace processes. Partners are the NGO Concordis International, headquartered in London and the Centre for Humanitarian Dialogue, based in Geneva.

Sexual violence

In conflicts, sexual violence is often used as a weapon. Most victims are female. Liechtenstein supports two shelters for female victims in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo, operated by the Congolese NGO SOS Femmes en Danger (SOSFED).

Women seeking refuge are provided with accommodation, food, medical treatment and vocational training. SOSFED also helps victims to return to their families and to reintegrate into their respective communities.
